Christopher Cox is a partner at Bingham McCutchen LLP and principal of the Bingham Consulting Group. He is the former Chairman of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and served for 17 years as a member of the United States Congress, during which he served as Chairman of the Task Force on Capital Markets.

Roger Joseph is a partner and the Head of the Investment Management Group as well as the Co-Head of the Financial Services Area at Bingham McCutchen LLP.

Luncheon Topic

Financial regulatory reform is being hotly debated throughout the world -- and nowhere more than in the United States. The changes to U.S. regulation expected later this year will have a broad impact on foreign investment in the U.S. as well as on the global profiles of U.S. financial institutions. The way that these American reforms integrate with financial regulatory systems around the world will also have a profound affect on Asian companies, investors, and financial institutions. At the same time, U.S. fiscal policy in the aftermath of the financial crisis has resulted in ballooning government deficits, presenting new challenges to the long-term health of the U.S. economy and the world economy as a whole. For Japan, which is one of the U.S. government's largest creditors, a sound U.S. fiscal policy is of the highest importance. It is our pleasure to introduce two distinguished partners from Bingham to address these issues and implications for us in Japan.
